ROOSEVELT'S COURT PLAN

Like a bombshell on Congress and the country last week fell President Roosevelt's request for authority to reorganize the Federal judiciary, and particularly the Supreme Court.

So completely unexpected was it, and so tremendous its significance, that the lawmakers were momentarily thrown into excited confusion, and many seemed for some time not to know just how to react. Now, however, opinion is crystallizing into two stands. One holds that this plan, by making it possible to enlarge the Court to 15 members or force retirement of over-age members, is the best way to clear the road for New Deal reforms without too great a fundamental change in our government.

The other school of thought views the proposal with considerable alarm, calls it an outright attempt to pack the court and points out that the precedent may enable a future president to increase the membership even further — to the point of absurdity, if he chooses.

It all really proves just one thing, namely that President Roosevelt is determined not to let the Court stand in the way of reforms he feels are imperative. There will now be a fight to some kind of a finish.

"ONE-THIRD OF A NATION" . . .

These are good times. Humming factories, busy stores, people zestful and quick to smile — all attest that these are good times.

And yet like a persistently discordant note in a joyous symphony, linger the disquieting words of the president in his inaugural address:

"I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished."

Unfortunately, the President was right about the one-third. Even in 1929, the peak year, the figures showed one-third of our families with less than $1250 a year.

But to solve the problem of the ill-nourished and ill-clad, there need be no departure from the American way. What we need is, an even more vigorous application of the formula that has helped us build the richest nation in the world — the economy of greater efficiency.

Raise the standard of living by lowering the cost of living, lowered costs making more of everything available to the ever-widening multitude of our people. That means encouraging use of technology and mass methods in production, and encouraging the cost eliminating efficiency of modern quantity methods in retail distribution.

The end result is widened markets, more men employed in supplying those markets and earning wages with which to buy more things for themselves. In short, it is the traditional American formula that can solve our greatest economic problem — underconsumption.

These are good times. But we have far to go to silence the echo of the words, "one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished. . . ." We have all we need to continue our climb toward the goal of abundance. Let us proceed under the formula that has proved its effectiveness.

THEY'RE NOT ALL STRIKING

America is more strike conscious than ever before in the history of the country. So much so in fact that many have gained the impression virtually all the workers in the nation must be among those who have recently struck, are on a strike, or about to strike.

Such, of course, is not the case. As one business executive in California pointed out the other day, the vast bulk of American workers are and for years have been on the job steadily, with better wages and higher standards of living than those anywhere else in the world.

A politician is a man who makes $3000 annually, and saves $10,000 of it each year.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—California's Democrats are not the only persons looking ahead to 1938 and making preliminary plans for the state elections.

Republicans, hoping to recover some of their losses, have started discussing various methods of reorganizing their party along stronger lines, with the hope that they will not face another democratic landslide when state, rather than national, election issues are at stake.

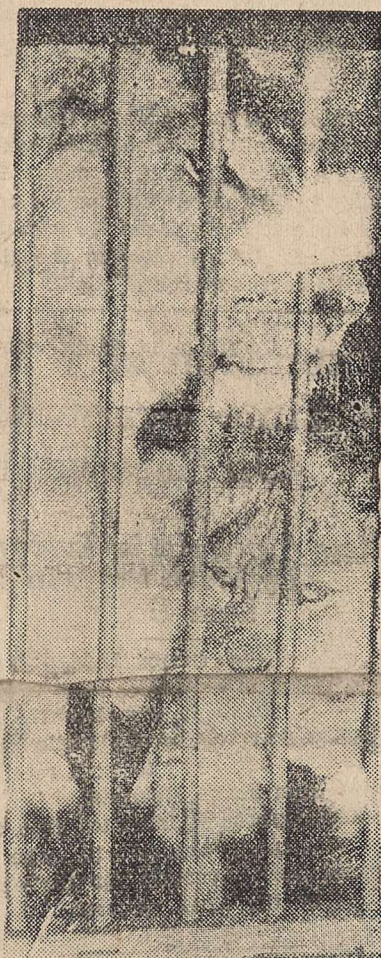

Every elective and practically all appointive state officials now are republicans, but there was a general feeling that a change in party power would occur in 1938 unless the Bourbons should lose strength and the republicans regain some of their old power during the next year. The effect upon the California elections in 1934 when republicans were returned to office and Frank F. Merriam defeated Epic-democrat Upton Sinclair for the governorship. But democrats and republicans alike believed — according to the present outlook — that 1938 would be a dark year for state republican officials.

In the governorship field, Lt. Gov. George J. Hatfield was far in the lead. He had not announced officially his candidacy, but everyone believed he had an eye on the post, and he was the most prominent of the early prospects.

One group of younger republicans in southern California was trying to start a movement in support of State Senator Ed Fletcher, of San Diego. Some of the older party leaders believed a drive of that kind would only serve to widen the party split.

Reorganization of the republican assembly, composed of younger party members, was expected to result from a meeting in San Francisco February 20-21, when George Newell,

A fight was promised in this respect, however, as reports indicated the Shattuck faction would oppose Newell.

Commenting upon the movement to draft Craemer, who is an Orange publisher, chairman of the republican state central committee and assistant state director of public works, Editor Homer D. King of the Hemet News recently said in an editorial:

"One of the best known and most respected republican leaders in the state . . . has dropped a confidential note . . . and asks: 'Why sacrifice Justus when the democrats have a two to one lead in the state?'"

"There's a lot of meat in that question. Why, indeed, should the republicans kill off their best man by running him for governor in 1938?"

STRONG DEMAND FOR FARM PRODUCTS INDICATED IN STATE

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Indications of present and prospective levels of business activity point to a continuation of strong consumer demand for farm products, according to reports of the United States department of agriculture.

Income from marketing during December 1936, totaled $725,000,000, the survey said.

Tahoe Ramblings . . .

(By SWANEE)

Miss Margaret Harvie entertained at a surprise shower on Tuesday last at her home in Sacramento for Miss Barbara Howrigan, daughter of Mrs. Muriel Howrigan, mother and daughter being former Tahoe residents. Appointments favored the valentine theme, cards and refreshments helping to pass away a pleasant evening. Miss Howrigan plans to marry Martin Spitzner, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Mayfield of Tahoe City about the middle of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Darlin and son, Larry, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Prusso and children, Donnie, Ray and Sherwood, took to their skis on Thursday making their way from Tahoe Inn to the Prusso resort after a prolonged wait for a snow plow which did not arrive. They carried provisions with them and managed to adjust themselves comfortably to their wintry surroundings despite handicaps. The Darlins, after a day's rest, continued onto their home in Tahoe Pines.

Miss Lillian Vernon, daughter of the C. W. Vernons of Tahoe City, is now attending Junior College in Sacramento where she is majoring in art and journalism.

We are informed that Carl Bechdolt, Jr., is no longer a student at St. Mary's College at Moraga.

Among those on the recent sick list at Tahoe were Mrs. C. W.

History of Ace Jumper Shows Many Outstanding Achievements on Skis

TAHOE CITY, Feb. 11.—The skiing history of Sigurd Ulland, Norwegian born, ace A jumper and present California State amateur A class champion, is one of the most interesting success stories ever written.

This affable, graceful distance jumper has won every tournament he entered in 1936, including those at Mineral in January, the Mt. Shasta meet on February 1, the Auburn meet at Cisco in February, the Big Pines meet in February and the California championship tournament on March 15 at Lake Tahoe.

Ulland has skied ever since he can remember, entering his first competition at Nakkerud, Modum, Norway, at the age of 12. Three hundred boys of all ages were entered in the events, his jump winning him third place. Following this he won several major tournaments in Norway and participated in the Holmen-Kollen, the largest, meet of its kind in the world.

He has won close to 200 medals and trophies in Norway and during his first year of competition in the United States. He arrived here seven years ago and has continued to give performances ever since.

During his first year in America he won a number of major events, including the New York State A amateur championship at White Plains, a number of tournaments in the east and middle west during which he annexed the state championship of Minnesota, held at Duluth also a large meet at Westby, Wisconsin, where he out-lapped such experts as Caspar Olmon, Lars Haugen and Halvor Halstead.

He held the Lake Placid hill record for three years, his 200-foot leap made during a sanctioned meet in 1929 not only winning for him first place, but establishing a new record or the hill which he retained until the Olympics of 1932.

At the Ironwood, Mich., tournament, took top honors at Ogden, Utah, placed second in Detroit and took second at Salt Lake City.

In May, 1930, he came to Lake Tahoe where he worked at the Tahoe Tavern during the summer. It was during the Christmas holidays of 1930 at Tahoe that he received an injury to his left knee during an exhibition performance. He was laid up for a full year, but in 1931 he again tried his luck. During that year he represented the Mt. Shasta Snowmen and won many honors at Salt Lake and Ogden, despite his injured knee. At Ogden he was only one foot behind Alf Engen, who was first. At the Mineral contest on January 15, he was second. Injuring his knee on the trial jump, he insisted on competing and his right knee was so badly injured that he feared he would never jump again. But following a three year total abstinence from skis, his knees mended completely.

In January, 1934, he entered the meet at Mt. Shasta and set a new hill record of 194 feet. In February, 1934, he set a new hill record at Afton, Wyoming, his last tournament for that year, leaping 174 feet to take first place.

His first jump as a professional in 1935 was in January at Salt Lake City where he took first place in the A division, making the two longest jumps of his career, 221 and 235 feet. From there he went to Mt. Shasta where on January 15 he placed first with 186 and 187 feet jumps. His last jump in the professional class was made at Salt Lake City where on February 17, 1935, he captured the world's championship with a record of 242 and 244 feet. This feat afforded Ulland the greatest thrill of his varied and successful career on skis.

Since that time he has been reinstated in the amateur class division and interesting competition is anticipated at the forthcoming National championships to be held at Salt Lake February 22.

Ulland, who captured the California State A championship at Tahoe in February last year, with a leap of 185 and 184 feet will wear the Lake Tahoe Ski Club colors to the National meet.

By winning the Big Pines International Invitational meet on January 23 and 24, he again wins the inscription of his name upon the coveted Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce trophy which will be awarded the winner of A events there three separate times. He won the Big Pine

Lake Tahoe Ski Club is proud of banking on this modest able son of Norway, confident he has an excellent opportunity not only to take the state championship title at the Cisco meet on February 14, but also is a potential contender or the coming national championship as well.

Can 'elight Soliloquy

By SWANEE

I write this on Saturday at noon. phone and electricity have been out of commission for hours. This means pressure pumps are not working and water is scarce! It is so dark outside even though only midday that visibility is negligible. Too dim to read or write or sew normally. Two wavering candles light my paper as I type. Glancing out the window, I find the cold wet snowfall still continuing as it has for days almost unabated. Terrific gusts of wind scatter great drifts from the sodden tree tops as giant pines, some five or six feet in diameter, quiver and sway in the binding fury of the blizzard. I turn away, more than a little awed by this unusually angry display of temperment in Nature. Outside somewhere on a white blanketed, slippery rooftop husband and son shovel the heavy snow, which now has reached the proximity of the eaves. Drenched to the skin and numb with cold, they will soon return to change clothing and gulp stimulating hot coffee and milk.

It is amusing to recall the numerous inexperienced couples, who annually invade the lake district seeking caretakers positions, because they often remark: "we are getting along in years and want a job that is not too strenuous." What disillusionment this storm would have brought them! For to be a successful caretaker, a man must have a practical, working knowledge of many crafts including electrician, plumber, gardener, painter, carpenter, mechanic, boatman, wood-chopper, snow shoveler, which is an art itself, and numerous others.

We who spend from six to eight months each year in the snow are

AN OLD ART STILL LIVES

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Cattle rustling, that celebrated adjunct of early California stock raising, has not entirely disappeared from the list of criminal activities. There were 42 persons arrested for offenses of this kind in 1936, authorities reported.

For the most part prepared. We lay in large quantities of food stuff and medical preparations, warm clothing and many other necessities we suspect may be needed. Usually it is only those who imprudently buy from day to day who find themselves short of needed domestic commodities when such a blizzard as the present prolonged one hems them in. No one at present is known to be in want although fresh meats, vegetables, bread and milk are scarce.

An admirable spirit of cooperation and neighborliness exists at Tahoe during the winter months, fostering a kindred spirit which strangely often vanishes with summer's advent. No call for help in an emergency ever goes unheeded, what ever the cost. We who enjoy Tahoe the year round with its lovely summers and many times desolate winters, somehow feel rewarded by being accorded an opportunity to experience that same old traditional spirit of hardy, early-day frontiersman, denied secure residents of the metropolis.

As I write, the barometer drops still lower, the wind has abated somewhat and snow now covers the trees washed free by last night's torrential rains, which also dropped the level of the snow three feet.

Two days ago the rotary started to Brockway, getting nearly as far as Hog Pen Hill when it was called back to duty on the main highways. Today, Saturday, we have been snowed in exactly 11 days with poor prospects of being liberated as long as the blizzard continues. Dismal the world indeed, with not even a single bird to brighten the gloomy landscapes with a song!

Winding up this rambling candle soliloquy with the ardent hope it may deter some less hardy prospective Tahoe caretaker, we ring off to bring forth the cooled pan of chocolate walnut fudge and brush the dust from the portable phonograph in a cheerful effort to offset the fury of Mother Nature's relentless rampage out of doors!

THE 25-MILLIONTH

F O R D

HAS JUST BEEN BUILT

IT HAS never occurred before in automobile history that 25 million cars of one make, bearing one name, have been manufactured under one management. The 25,000,000th Ford car rolled off the Ford Rouge Plant production line on January 18, 1937.

25 million cars since 1903 . . . more than one-third of all the cars ever built . . . enough cars to transport the entire population of the United States.

The figures represent a remarkable contribution to the social welfare, the industrial stability and the general progress of our country.

People respect Ford efficiency. They know Ford uses fine materials, the best workmanship at good wages, the most exact precision measurements. They know these things are passed along to purchasers in the form of extra value. Naturally, they like to do business with such a company. That is the only reason it has been required to produce 25 million cars.

Naturally, too, they expect more of a Ford car, more this year than last year — more each year than the year before. They have every right to. The experience gained in building 25,000,000 cars enables Ford to produce today a really superb motor car at a really low price — with the Beauty, Comfort, Safety and Performance of much more expensive cars.

The 1937 Ford V-8 combines advanced design, all-steel construction, extra body room, and brilliant brakes with a choice of two V-type 8-cylinder engines — the most modern type of power-plant on land, sea, or in the air.

The 35-horsepower engine provides top performance with unusually good economy for its high power.

The 60-horsepower engine gives good performance with the greatest gasoline mileage ever built into a Ford car — and wears the lowest Ford price tag in years.

People expect more of a Ford car because it's a Ford — and they get more, for the same reason. It is undeniably the quality car in the low-price field.

Cecil Selburn shot a coyote on the railroad tracks back of the store on Monday morning. From the pool hall someone noticed the wild fellow coming across the meadow and in broad daylight he went into one of the pig pens and came out with a piece of suet in his mouth. Meanwhile, Selburn had procured a rifle and took a shot at the coyote at long range, hitting the animal and wounding it. By the time some of the men got across the road to where the animal was lying, it got up and ran toward the railroad cars in the yard, where it disappeared from sight. Later someone found him under the cars where he was unable to get away, and shot him to end the suffering. The hide is a fine specimen and Mr. Selburn is very proud of the long-range shot he fired that wounded the coyote so seriously that he was unable to get away.

During the afternoon another coyote was seen in the same field. The animals are numerous around close to town, the severe storm having driven them in for food.

Besides the railroad car that tipped over with the heavy weight of the snow last week in the railroad yard, there were several others that later met the same fate. Up the railroad tracks there were ten cars stored that had been in use on the narrow gauge road to the logging camp, and of the string of ten, five were found to have yielded to the wind and extreme weight of snow and overturned.

The Truckee road is closed now now nearing two weeks and its the longest of any period for some time. The main roads open during the past two weeks. Hobart folks will welcome the opening of the road and it will be good to get out to Truckee once more.

The weather seems to have cleared for a few days at any rate in this section as there have been some extremely cold nights, with clear skies and it is hoped that conditions will return to normal once more.

FREAK CONDITION IS REPORTED IN OHIO RIVER FLOOD AREA

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—The present flood which has thus far submerged parts of 12 states also is breaking records for freakish maneuvering, it was reported here from Washington.

Hydraulic engineers of the geological survey division of the department of the interior, said that never before in their knowledge had the middle and lower sections of a river slopped over flood waters so intensively while the upper waters near the head of the stream remain comparatively governable and under control.

This, engineers state, is exactly what is happening in the Ohio river. Only known explanation is that the storm which precipitated the disturbance centered near the middle and lower Ohio, filling the tributaries which feed into it.

CALIFORNIANS EAT MORE MEAT DURING YEAR JUST PASSED

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP) — Californians made 1936 an eat-more meat year, according to figures announced by the division of animal industry, state department of agriculture.

A total of 5,630,796 cattle, hogs, sheep and goats were slaughtered for food, the department stated, compared with 5,239,991 for the year previous.

Of the 1936 slaughter, 2,883,543 animals were killed in state inspected establishments and 748,298 in the plants under state approved municipal inspection.

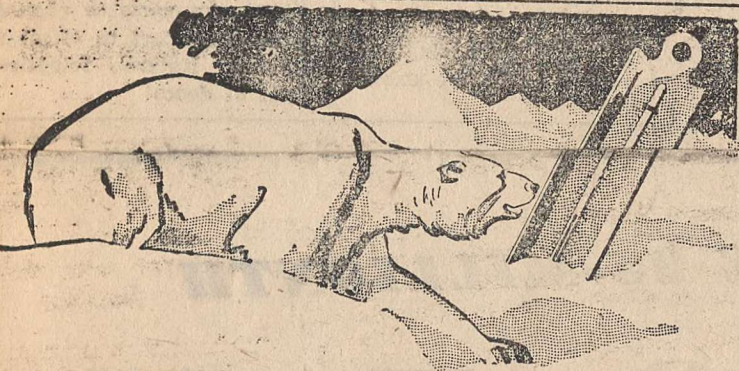

Meat inspection is mandatory in all California counties having a population of 27,000 or more.

When the temperature goes "bearish" ... Turn on Winter Sunshine

EVERY home has its arctic zones these cold mornings and evenings. So often in the bathroom, breakfast nook or corner bedroom there are chilly spots that would even make a polar bear thermometer-minded. These cold spots vanish when you plug in the efficient, portable electric heater.

"Turning on winter sunshine" is what more than 100,000 California families call these handy electric heaters. With electric heat you can dress in comfort, warm your body and your clothes in the mornings. You can thaw out the bathroom while you bathe and shave. Your home should have one or two of these quick-acting electric heaters.

TARZAN WILL HAVE RIVAL IF PLANS OF YOUTH FULFILLED

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Tarzan of the movies and comic strips will have a rival in real life if the plans of Arthur Cadogan, 21, materialize.

Cadogan, formerly of Muscatine, Ia., but now a resident of Los Angeles, revealed his intention of emulating the mythical jungle man's activities while awaiting a hitch-hike ride to southern California. He was on the last lap of a round-the-world trip without spending a nickel, for which he will collect a $500 bet from a friend in Los Angeles, he said.

The journey was started October 26, 1935, and included visits to New York, London, Hamburg, Paris, Rome, Cairo, Ceylon, Singapore, Shanghai, Tokyo, Sidney, Fiji, Samoa, Honolulu and back to America via the Panama canal.

His next venture, Cadogan said, will be an attempt to live in the African jungles for a year, with no money and armed only with bow and arrows and a knife.

PARROT SREAMS AS RAT MUNCHES FOOD; CAT SLEEPS

WOODLAND, Feb. 11.—(UP)—It may be true, friends of Fred Hamlet agreed, but they kept their fingers crossed when he told this tale:

Awakened by the frantic shrieking of his pet parrot, Hamlet investigated. The bird was clinging to the side bars of its cage and screaming "Kitty, Kitty, Kitty," he said.

Inside the cage, calmly devouring the parrot's food were two rats. The family cat was asleep nearby.

Selection of a successor to Charles W. Paine, secretary-manager of the California State Fair, has developed into a perplexing task for Governor Frank F. Merriam, in view of the many applications supported by conflicting groups and interests.

Paine retired under the mandatory age laws, and his place was taken temporarily by his son, Tevis Paine. But detailed advance arrangements for the 1937 exposition cannot be made until a secretary-manager is appointed.

One of the latest names to enter the discussion was Harold Roberts, director of the U. S. C. band and prominent in southern California exposition circles. Persons proposing Roberts as manager of the State Fair point out that he is young, vigorous and experienced, and probably could push the fair out the country fair class and make it a major exposition.

The legislature, always quick to pass memorializing resolutions of its own, soon must consider one presented by the Nevada legislature, asking California to enact laws preventing "unreasonable inspection of baggage, goods and personal effects of persons entering California from Nevada."

MELVIN LORD TAKE PUBLICITY JOB IN STATE DIVISION

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—The state board of equalization has announced the appointment of Melvin Lord, newspaper man, as its publicity director for northern California.

Lord was a member of the Sacramento staff of the United Press for six years before he accepted the position with the board.

This Week At The State Capitol

GEORGE HELMER

United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—

Appointment of Dr. Walter F. Dexter as state superintendent of public instruction placed another "Merriam man" in an important state position.

Dr. Dexter, who succeeded Vierling Kersey, joined Ray L. Riley, Harry Riley, Ra Edgar and others who in the past year or so were named to important state positions by Gov. Frank F. Merriam. Kersey moved to Los Angeles to become superintendent of schools there at a salary twice as large as the $6000 paid him by the state.

In choosing a successor to Dr. Dexter as his executive secretary Governor Merriam stayed in the educational field and picked Verne S. Landreth, of Atascadero, who in addition to being president of a private school there, served as Pacific Coast conference official for eight years. He was athletic director at Whittier College when Dr. Dexter was president of the institution. Dexter recommended him for the secretary position.

Assemblyman Leon M. Donihue's audit investigating committee divided the board of equalization relief, unnecessary use of state automobiles, institutional operations and the state fish and game commission.

One group was told by Harry Lutgens, state director of institutions, that $6,000,000 was needed immediately to provide sufficient accommodations to take care of the state hospital "waiting list"; that old age pension expenditures will increase $39,000,000 to 71 millions during the next two years, even if the legislature should not raise the payment from $35 to $50 a month, or lower the age requirement from 65 to 60 years.

Attorney General U. S. Webb, addressing a council chamber full of law enforcement officers from 34 counties, demanded stricter enforcement of statutes prohibiting gambling and slot machines. He said the enforcement of major crimes in California was splendid, but violation of minor laws was increasing. In San Francisco alone, he said, the "take" from the pin games and slot machines amounted to $500,000 a week.

Delegates from all sections of the state crowded the highway commission meeting to protest the allocation of funds for projects planned during the 1937-39 biennium. They wanted more highway improvements in their particular areas. Commissioners explained, again, that with only $26,000,000 to use in meeting demands for $12,000,000 worth of projects, it was not possible to please everybody.

The life of William Zirbes, San Quentin inmate, was extended for the third time when Governor Frank F. Merriam granted a last-minute 30-day reprieve to give Zirbes' attorneys time to obtain additional statements from members of the trial jury in support of a commutation plea.

Zirbes was accused of slaying Clifford Andrus in North Sacramento a 1935 after an argument over the division of loot obtained from a San Francisco theater robbery.

Another step in development of the Central Valley Water project was taken when the state water authority approved the form of a contract submitted by Miller and Lux, Inc., proposing to transfer San Joaquin Valley "grass land" water rights to the federal government. The authority, however, did not pass upon the company's request for $2,500,000 for the transaction.

More than 100,000 California motorists procrastinated sufficiently to bring upon themselves a penalty levied on those who did not apply for their new automobile registration during the time prescribed by law. The deadline was midnight of February 4. Those who did not attend to the annual detail before then faced the necessity of paying double for their plates ($6 instead of $3) and 5 per cent more on their "in lieu" tax which is assessed at $1.75 per $100 valuation of their cars.

The state board of equalization made a San Francisco employee, William Stafford, was accused by federal officials of supplying bootleggers with confiscated alcohol. Board members said they knew nothing of Stafford's alleged operations.

MANY DEMANDS ON HIGHWAY GROUP IN CAPITAL MEET

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 11.—(UP)—Eighty-one employers hire approximately one quarter of all persons affected by the California Unemployment Reserves Act, it was disclosed as legislators considered a bill which would more than treble the number of employers currently contributing to the fund.

J. L. Matthews, Covina, chairman of the unemployment reserves commission, said adoption of the measure now before the legislature will add 56,689 employers to the 17,088 now subject to the act's provisions. The bill would bring employers of one to seven persons within the laws scope.

McKeen Improved

H. A. McKeen, a former resident of Hobart Mills, now residing in Los Angeles writes to friends that his health, which was not good when they left for the southland, is much improved.

They awaited developments before starting a thorough investigation of their own.

Child Ill—

A. C. Marts and daughter, Phyllis, have returned to Truckee from a vacation trip, but Mrs. Marts and the couple's young son are remaining in Sacramento for a week where the latter is reported to be recovering from a light case of pneumonia which he evidently contracted in the lower climate.

uted soon to the state highway fund and to counties, State Controller Harry B. Riley announced today. Nevada County's share will be $17,022.96.

The state will retain $7,400,000, and $3,700,000 will go to the counties.

Total revenue for the quarter showed an important gain as compared with previous periods, reflecting the general upward trend in business conditions, officials believe.

The state's share of the proceeds will be used to help finance highway projects already budgeted for the 1935-37 period. Counties must use their share for highway purposes also.
